My dear parishioners,

Jesus invites us to truly appreciate the gift of the Spirit, it is perhaps helpful for us to remember what Christ has not promised us. Christ has not promised us life would be easy. He has not promised us that we would never have to face divorce or rejection or pain. He has not promised us that we would always have a job or that we would always have our health. He has not promised us that we would always be successful or that we would never make a mistake. These are all promises which perhaps we hope would have been made to us, but they are to be found nowhere in the scriptures.

What is found in the scriptures is a greater promise. Time and time again Jesus promise us the gift of his own Spirit so that he would be in our lives forever. We believe in that promise, and yet we know that we will have to listen if we can benefit from the gift of that Spirit.

The Spirit of God is not always the loudest sound in our ear. The Spirit of God is not always the brightest light in our eye. Often the Spirit of God is found in the subtext of our lives. The presence of God's Spirit is often discernible under the activities and responsibilities that fill up our days. Like a constant message God's Spirit continually assures us of the presence of God. Therefore, we must be careful lest we allow ourselves to become deaf to that Spirit because of all our responsibilities and preoccupations. We must not allow our disappointments over the gifts that we have not received deaden our joy over the gifts which the Spirit has given us.

Even if we have to struggle in life, like during these times of the pandemic virus, we are called to discern God's presence in the strength that allows us to continue to move forward. Even though we might have to face hardship and pain, we are called to recognize God's Spirit in the love of the people who still share life with us.

Even though we might have to cope with sickness and death, we are still called to hear the sound of the Spirit in the life that continues and promises us a tomorrow.

The admonition of today's gospel is to believe and to listen. To believe that the Spirit of God is always with us at every moment of our lives, and to listen so we can hear the sound of the Spirit as it moves under our everyday schedules.

Yes, we are called to listen, so that we might recognize the message of God's Spirit, the message of love that keeps sounding under all the activities and challenges of life.

I pray that each one of us, will be able to let the Holy Spirit touch our spirits and help us to embrace God's Will with peace and joy. Please, try to put into practice these simple spiritual recommendations:

READ: Jesus assures his followers of a helper, the Paraclete, so that they will not feel orphaned or abandoned. If they show their love for Jesus through obedience to his words, they will be loved by the Father, and the Son, and the Spirit will dwell within them.

PRAY: Let the Spirit guide our discernment and decision always. Let us be sensitive to His inspiration in the ordinary events of our life. REFLECT: Living in Christian fidelity, when the world invites us to go the other way, is no easy task. One cannot do it by oneself, one needs a helper. Thus, Jesus promises the Holy Spirit as the indwelling helper to see us through the Christian mandate. Where does my allegiance lay and on whom do, I lean—the spirit of the world or the indwelling Spirit of God? And why? ACT: Practice the examination of conscience daily in order to see where God is leading us always.

May God bless you each of you and your beloved family as well. Know that you are always in my prayers and love. Be assured that at every mass I do celebrate in private (live stream), you are truly present. I do pray that soon we all may be united as on family at our parish of St. Joseph the Worker again! Bless you all!

Fr. Javier G. Virgen, Pastor
